

Do you want to complete a real consulting project for a local non-profit or small business? Are you looking for an experience where you can make a difference and stand out as a business professional?

This isn't your normal internship experience. Based in experiential learning, Leading for Good provides hands-on, community-based internships for high-level undergraduates who want to make a difference.

This is your chance! LeadLocal is now accepting applications for its competitive Spring internship program, Leading for Good. While working with a team of students, you will receive the training and personalized feedback you need to fine tune your professional skills and emerge as a leader!

Leading for Good gives you the opportunity to complete a real consulting project under the guidance of a young professional.

You receive coaching, networking, and the chance to show what you're made of – so when you're looking for that next opportunity, you can point to your success on a real consulting project.

Spring 2016

January 11 – May 5, 2016

10-hour weekly time commitment

Materials fee: $95

Previous project partners include La Encantada, Tucson Medical Center, Arizona Earn to Learn, Tu Nidito, and the NASA Space Grant, among others.

Applications are open online and you can visit the LeadLocal website to learn more:

<http://leadlocal.global/>

Application deadline: Nov. 13, 2016 (Friday)

Apply to Leading for Good today and Be The Change in our community.

Questions? Contact Kristin Blum: kristin@leadlocal.global